

A Landowner's Perspective

Interviews with Landowners of Conservation Easements

In the last few decades, Virginia landowners have protected over 850,000 acres of land by developing a conservation easement on what is often their most valued family heirloom, their land.

Please join us and listen to their stories of how they came to decide that a conservation easement was the right thing for them, their family, and their land. Discussions with 6 landowners will take us from the very beginning, through the easement development process, the resulting Federal and State tax benefits, and living with the easement.

Friday, March 30th 9am–4pm
at the Virginia Department of Forestry's
New Kent Forestry Center
11301 Pocahontas Trail,
Providence Forge, Va. 23140

Registration is $10 per person and lunch will be provided.

Registration can be made at:

<http://cnre.vt.edu/forestupdate/Pages/onlineregistration.html>

For more information, please contact Rob Suydam at 804-328-3031

Virginia Cooperative Extension programs and employment are open to all, regardless of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, or marital or family status. An equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Virginia State University, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture cooperating. Edwin J. Jones, Director, Virginia Cooperative Extension, Virginia Tech, Blacksburg; Jewel E. Hairston, Interim Administrator, 1890 Extension Program, Virginia State, Petersburg.